Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1-17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Beer et al.

See the appropriate paragraph of the 5/9/05 final rejection for the teachings of Beer et al. and Johnson.

These references are silent removing the filter dust from a partially dried feed stock.

The court decide In re Boesch (205 USPQ 215) that optimization of a result effective variable is ordinarily within the skill of the art. A result effective variable is one that has well known and predictable results. Removing contaminants prior to drying a feed stock or after drying the feed stock would have had the same expected result of removing the contaminant and order chosen would have been a result effective variable.

A partially dried product will have a greater density of the contaminants than a fully hydrated product promoting more efficient and effective to remove contaminants from a more concentrated product. Additionally, a smaller container would be required and less solvent/wash solutions would be required to remove the contaminants from a partially dried product.

It would have been within the skill of the art to modify Beer et al. and remove the filter dust from the product when partially dried as optimization of a result effective variable and to gain the above advantages.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 7/26/05 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Art Unit: 1743

Applicants remarks concerning Johnson were convincing and this rejection has been vacated.

Applicants' traversed the 35 USC 102 rejections of record on the basis the claims as presently amended require removal of filter dust from a partially dried feed stock. The Office has addressed this issue in the new 35 USC 103 rejection over Beer et al.

A proper, timely and convincing 35 USC 1.132 Declaration showing that unexpected results are achieved by the instant invention over that of Beer et al. could be persuasive to overcome Beer et al.
